

What's next in your scientific career?

📍 Sal6n de actos, Instituto de Qu6mica-F6sica, 'Rocasolano' C/Serrano, 119, 28006 Madrid

27 Septiembre

12:00h

1 – Soft skills for young researcher: Dr. Gabrielle Thomas. Innovation Ambassador m2lasers and OSA Ambassador 2019

Gabrielle Thomas got a PhD in Laser Physics and after that, she has worked in both academic and commercial environments, developing lasers for a broad range of applications including biomedical imaging, LIDAR, attosecond science, and quantum technology. She is currently working as a commercial scientist in Berlin, Germany, for M Squared Lasers, working with their innovations team to bring research technology to the market.

2 – Research opportunities In Europe: MSC, Euraxes, etc: Cristina Gracia Rodriguez.

Punto Nacional de Contacto MSCA/NCP for MSCA; Oficina Europea FECYT-MICIU

Cristina Gracia got her degree in biology and a MSc in biotechnology focused on business at the Aliter International Business School, in Madrid. She has been project manager in Genoma Espa1a Foundation and in Spanish Foundation for Science and Technology where she has worked as European projects manager, where she has been involved in bibliometric data analysis, science diplomacy, organization of scientific events of different kind. In 2018, she was appointed MSCA National Contact Point right after starting her collaboration with the EURAXESS Spain network as portal administrator.

3 – Round table and Open Questions

Seminary organized by Mar6a Vi1as, Clara Bened6 and Sara Aissati

SU6GELO EN STREAMING:

